

INTERIOR TREND

Surface LEVEL

Edited by: Anna Solomon

When it comes to interior design, there was a time when less was more. Everyone was looking to the smooth lines of Scandinavian and Japanese design (or a fun compound of the two christened 'Japandi'). But an opposing school is emerging; one rejecting glossiness and fluidity and embracing texture.

I mean, with the booming popularity of ASMR (you know, those YouTube videos of people popping bubble wrap, or brushing hair, or doing other things considered 'satisfying?'), it was only a matter of time before we starting surrounding ourselves with all manner of squishy, bobbly, bumpy goodness.

So here's to fluffy throws, fuzzy poufs and knobbly tableware. To objects that intrigue and have fun, and to spaces that are one oddly-shaped cushion away from feeling like an adult's soft play area. Because who really wants to feel like they're living in a high-end spa? This is a lot more fun.

Wiggle stool
£529, conranshop.co.uk

Risom lounge chair
£1,200, conranshop.co.uk

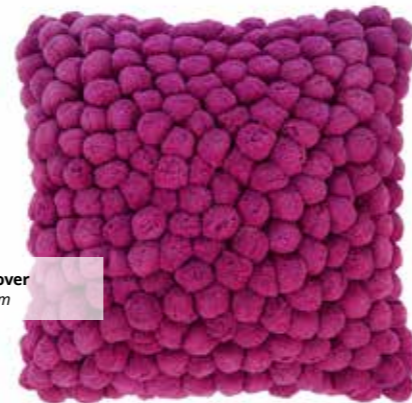

House of Hackney flora fantasia ceramic vase
£395, matchesfashion.com

Orsay candle
£29, conranshop.co.uk

Perla Valtierra candle holder
£175, abask.com

Ultra cushion cover
£80, amara.com

Otterley vase
£15, abigailahern.com

Laffin lamp
£280, abigailahern.com

Umage Silvia shade
£88, amara.com

Romi footstool
£550, sohohome.com

Barrel coffee table
£1,195, sohohome.com

Bourton bowl
£75, abigailahern.com

Lenny side table
£750, sohohome.com

Duplero candle
£26, mociun.com

Perla Valtierra dessert plate
£200, abask.com

Preston corduroy chair
£800, abigailahern.com

Colville rug
£2,320, matchesfashion.com

Knot cushion
£30.99, belliani.co.uk