

Go with the FLOW

Words: Anna Solomon

This season, it's all about curves and contours

If you're plugged into the world of interiors, chances are you've heard of biophilia – the trend influenced by humanity's 'tendency to focus on lifelike processes'. Well, this isn't quite that, but it is similar. Biophilia usually refers to the presence of plants – but organic shapes and earthy tones can have just as calming an effect. In 2022, we're rejecting crisp lines and severe edges. Everything has gotten softer: corners are rounded, ceramics are artisanal, and metals are distressed. Natural-feeling textiles like boucle and wicker are coming to the fore, and when we can't have wooden tones, it's got to be moss green or rust orange.

Tambo wide desk,
£850, made.com

Edra velvet chair,
POA, monologuelondon.com

Tufted cotton cushion cover,
£24.99, hm.com

Curvo wine rack,
£150, nambe.co.uk

Venini Fazzoletto opalino vase,
£822, amara.com

Wool rug shape,
£585.95, benuta.co.uk

Spark light spiral pendant
£1,644, designorchard.co.uk

Alec natural cane floor lamp,
£55, dunelm.com

Cenote vase,
£305, uk-fobjet.com

Rope vase,
£22, made.com

Tom Dixon bash vessel,
£225, johnlewis.com

Zanat aurora candleholder,
£119, farfetch.com

Aaram cabinet,
£1,895, kamcekam.com